TABLES AND SMALL TABLES | Open-air
PAOLA NAVONE

The Rimini open-air table by Paola Navone for Baxter embodies the essence of a city synonymous with Italian holidays, evoking the easy elegance of summer ambiances with a design that is both inviting and everlasting. With its soft, rounded lines, the table is made from a tubular structure made of acid-etched copper declined in two versions: Outdoor, with an eclectic and resistant verdigris finish; and Open-Air, characterised by a sophisticated acid-etched finish that lends further depth to the copper. The large top in precious Palladiana black, green, or concrete offers the opportunity to personalise the piece for any outdoor environment, while preserving the timeless beauty and practical design.
