STUDIOPEPE

Nanda is the majestic wall light designed by Studiopepe for Baxter, artfully merging a distinctive fused glass surface with refined and original lines that effortlessly become the focal point in any space. The metal structure fixes the neon lamp to the wall through solid burnished brass pins, which support the refined fused glass lampshade. This last component reveals the entire manual technique of glass processing, an ancient art capable of shaping imperfections, marks and unique details that make each light point a highly prized rarity.
